President and CEO
Headwall Investments, LLC
San Antonio, TX

George Wommack has spent more than the past decade intricately involved in various stages of the commercial real estate and oil & gas industry where he has been instrumental in leading various private equity backed and privately funded companies. He founded and is the former CEO of Petro Waste Environmental LP (Petro Waste), which he grew into the largest oil & gas solid and liquid waste landfill operator in the Permian Basin and ultimately sold to Waste Management (NYSE: WM). Prior to Petro Waste, Mr. Wommack syndicated multiple real estate limited partnership investments with a tremendously successful track record.

In Mr. Wommack's current role as President and CEO of Headwall Investments, he is committed to recreating the successes in real estate he delivered through Fortress Holdings on a comparable scale to what he accomplished at Petro Waste. Headwall manages a real estate investment fund focused on multitenant shopping center investments in the San Antonio MSA.

Mr. Wommack has been recognized for some of these achievements which include being named to the Oil and Gas Investor Magazine's Forty Under 40 list in 2018, the San Antonio Business Journal's "C-Suite Award" in 2017 and the "40 Under 40" list in 2016, and being featured in Texas CEO magazine 2016. Additionally, in his role at Petro Waste Environmental he was successful in achieving recognition as a "Best Places to Work" by San Antonio Business Journal for each year the company was eligible.

Mr. Wommack is a leader in the San Antonio community, active in numerous organizations and endeavors benefitting business, education, and the arts. He is a member of the San Antonio chapter of the Young Presidents' Organization (YPO) as well as the Rotary Club of San Antonio. He and his wife, Christen, are involved in many of the city's cultural and educational institutions, and keep busy raising their four children.

Mr. Wommack graduated from The University of Texas at Austin McCombs School of Business with a degree in finance. While in college, he was active in the SAE Texas Rho Fraternity where he served as President and the Silver Spurs organization where he served as a Bevo Handler.
